Subtitle guideline

Here are some simple basic rules for creating readable and effective subtitles:

- Length: The subtitle should consist of a maximum of two lines, each of which can contain a maximum of 36/40 characters.

- Duration: The minimum duration of a subtitle obviously varies depending on its length. It ranges from a minimum of 1.5 seconds for short or very short subtitles (2 or 3 words) to a maximum of 7/8 seconds if using the maximum length.

- Synthesis: It is a fundamental characteristic for conveying all the main concepts within the short time and space allotted to each subtitle. It is not necessary to reproduce word for word, but it is important to convey the concept.

- Respect punctuation to divide text lines and avoid breaking sentences by separating compound verbs or nouns from their articles
